

Fiber optic connector SC coupler

Article Overview

An SC coupler is a device that connects and aligns SC fiber optic connectors, enabling efficient light transmission with minimal loss.

Overview

A fiber optic SC coupler (also called an adapter or mating sleeve) is used to connect two SC fiber optic connectors precisely, ensuring optimal light transmission and minimal signal loss . SC couplers are widely used in single-mode and multi-mode networks, including FTTX, data centers, and premise networks . They provide low insertion loss, high repeatability, and reliable mechanical performance.

Types of SC Couplers

- Simplex SC Coupler: Connects a single fiber to another single fiber, ideal for point-to-point connections .
- Duplex SC Coupler: Connects two fiber pairs, often used in bidirectional communication or duplex links .
- Quad SC Coupler: Connects four fiber pairs, suitable for high-density applications .
- Hybrid SC Coupler: Connects different connector types, such as LC to SC, enabling flexible network integration .
- Angle-Polished Coupler: Designed for low-loss, high-precision applications like DWDM systems .
