

Fiber optic coupler single-mode duplex

Article Overview

A fiber optic single mode duplex coupler is a device that connects two single mode fiber cables, allowing bidirectional signal transmission with low insertion loss and high durability.

Overview

A duplex coupler is designed to connect two single mode fiber optic cables simultaneously, supporting bidirectional communication. Unlike simplex couplers, which handle only one fiber, duplex couplers allow two fibers to be connected in parallel, making them ideal for high-speed data networks, telecommunications, and enterprise installations .

Key Features

- Connector Compatibility: Duplex couplers are available for LC, SC, and other connector types, including UPC and APC variants, ensuring compatibility with most single mode fiber systems .
- Low Insertion Loss: Precision zirconia or ceramic sleeves maintain ultra-low insertion loss, typically around 0.2 dB, ensuring minimal signal degradation over long distances .
- Durability: High-quality materials like zirconia sleeves and robust flange designs allow for 500+ mating cycles without performance loss, suitable for both commercial and residential applications .
- Dust Protection: Many duplex couplers feature shuttered designs or hinged dust covers to prevent contamination and maintain signal integrity
