

Which South Asian optical cable supplier is the best

Article Overview

India is the leading South Asian supplier of optical fiber cables, with companies like Sterlite Technologies, Finolex Cables, and Polycab offering high-quality, internationally certified products.

Leading Suppliers in South Asia

India dominates the South Asian optical fiber cable market in terms of export value and production capacity, making it the top choice for quality and reliability . Key Indian suppliers include:

- Sterlite Technologies: Known for advanced fiber optic solutions, including FTTH, submarine, and enterprise networks. They have strong R&D capabilities and international certifications.
- Finolex Cables: Offers a wide range of telecom and networking fiber optic cables, with a reputation for durability and compliance with global standards.
- Polycab: Provides cost-effective solutions for both domestic and international markets, focusing on quality and scalability. Pakistan ranks second in South Asia, with suppliers catering to local telecom infrastructure and export markets . While smaller than India's industry, Pakistani companies are growing steadily in production and technological adoption. Sri Lanka has a smaller but emerging optical cable sector, offering competitive pricing for regional projects . Malaysia hosts notable suppliers like Opcom Holdings Berhad and Fujikura Malaysia Sdn. Bhd., which provide high-quality fiber optic cables for telecommunications and data centers, leveraging adva...
